Philippine History

Pre-historic

Origin of the Philippines

- The Land Bridge Theory
- Part of a Lost Continent
- Volcanic in Origin

The land bridge theory was considered by some earlier scientists and scholars as the most plausible. This theory states that the Philippine archipelago was once a part of mainland Asia. The Philippines was landmass bridging Asian continent to Indonesia, New Guinea up to the Australian Continent. About 250,000 years ago, during the post glacial period. The rise of the sea levels submerging lower regions which included the land bridges linking main land China and the Philippines. What were not submerged became the archipelagoes of the Philippines and Indonesia.

Some American geographers and geologists theorized that the Philippines and Indonesia were remnants of a Pacific continent called Mu or Lemuria, which had sunk during prehistoric period. This opinion was influenced by the legend of the lost continent of Atlantis, which was popularized by earlier European writers. This theory, however, is slowly becoming myth to modern geologists who considered it to have no scientific basis.

The Earliest People

Many theories have been written on the origin of humans in the Philippines but no definite evidence can show how and when the first people arrived in these parts.

Biblical theory states that humankind descended from Adam and Eve while scientists stick to the evolutionary theory.

Filipino myth and folklore state that the first Filipino male was Malakas and Maganda was his mate.

Migration Theory

Dr. H. O. Beyer's migration theory arranged the peopling of the Philippines with the coming of the Dawn Man, the pre-historic cousin of the Java man and Peking man of 250,000 years ago.

During the middle Pleistocene period (Ice Age), roughly about 250,000 B.C., man first appeared in the Philippines via the land bridges, which concerned mainland Asia and the Philippines.

The first known Filipino is the Tabon Cave Man who lived in Palawan at about 22,000 B.C. (The skull cap of this Stone Age human was discovered by Dr. Robert Fox inside the Tabon Cave in 1962.)

Pre-Colonial

Prof. F. Landa Jocano in his paper "The Vision of Our Future Must Be Rooted On Our Image Of The Past" strongly argues otherwise: "The Filipinos possessed an elaborate civilization in the past. This achievement did not become part of the Filipino consciousness, even today, because of the advent of colonization during which a systematic distortion of our perceptive about ourselves was carried out."

House

- Bahay Kubo (nipa hut) – was suited to climate. Bamboo or wood stakes (haligi) held the hut above the ground.
- Batalan – where washing and bathing were done.
- Badjaos (sea gypsies) – Sea gypsies of Sulu lived in boat – houses. This was so, because these people mainly derived their living from the resources of the sea.

The Visayan were the most tattooed people among the ancient Filipinos and for this reason the Spanish missionaries called them Pintados.

Social Classes

The Pre - Spanish society was divided into three social classes:

- The nobles
- Free men
- Dependents

The chiefs, their families and relatives composed the upper class or nobility. They carried the title GAT or LAKAN.

The middle class or freemen who were usually free – born persons or freed slaves constituted the majority of the social classes.

The dependents or the ALIPIN belonged to the lowest class. There were two kinds of dependents:

- Aliping namamahay – Owned houses and properties
- Aliping sagigilid – Had NO right. Could be sold anytime by his master(s)

Government

- Barangay – The pre colonial political unit. Composed of 30 to 100 families. It was a monarchy ruled by a chieftain called Datu, Hari or Raja (in Muslim community).

Burial Mourning and Practices

- Laraw/Larao – mourning for a dead chieftain
- Maglahe – for a dead man
- Morotal – for a dead woman

Languages and dialects

More than a hundred languages and dialects were spoken by ancient Filipinos. The 8 major languages and dialects:

- Tagalog
- Iloko
- Pangasinan
- Kapangpangan
- Sugbuhanon
- Hiligaynon
- Samamon
- Maguindanao

Malayo - Polynesian – Almost all of these languages and dialects originated from one linguistic family.

Literature

The pre-colonial Filipinos had both written and oral literature. Their oral literature consisted of the following:

- Awit (songs)
- Salawikain (proverbs)

AGRARIAN REFORM

Land reform refers to the full range of measures that may or should be taken to improve or remedy the defects in the relations among men (e.g., between the tiller and owner of land, employee and employer in a farm) with respect to their rights in land. (Raup, The Contribution of Land Reforms to Agricultural Development, page 1)

Land reform thus involves the "transformation of agrarian structure" or what are sometimes called "structural reforms" (Progress in Land Reform, p.30, a UN publication)

MEANING OF AGRARIAN REFORM

The term comprises NOT only land reform (i.e. the reform of tenure, production and supporting services structures) but also the reform and development of complementary institutional framework such as the administrative agencies of the national government, rural, educational and social welfare institutions, cooperatives, etc., and not limited simply to the question of the relationships of the farmers to the land.

In the Comprehensive Agrarian Reform Law of 1988 (R. A. # 6657), agrarian reform is defined to mean "the redistribution of land, regardless of crops or fruits produced, to farmers and regular farm workers who are landless, irrespective of tenurial arrangement, to include the totality of factors and support services designed to lift the economic status of the beneficiaries and all other arrangements alternative to the physical redistribution of lands, such as production or profit-sharing, labor administration, and the distribution of shares of stock, which will allow beneficiaries to receive a just share of the fruits of the lands they work." (Sec.3 (a) thereof).

In short, agrarian reform means solving the agrarian problem and thereby elevate the quality of the rural populace and make them active participants in the economic, social and political affairs of their locality.

EXAMPLES OF AGRARIAN REFORM MEASURES

Agrarian reform would, therefore, also cover the following:

- Public health programs;
- Family planning;
- Education and training of farmers;
- Reorganization of agrarian reform agencies;
- Application of labor laws to agriculture workers;
- Construction of infrastructure facilities such as feeder roads, irrigation systems, etc., and the establishment of rural electrification;
- Organization of various types of voluntary associations (farmers' associations, cooperatives, youth organization, etc., as a means of insuring popular support or overcoming opposition to the reform);
- Providing employment opportunities to underemployed or surplus rural labor (through the development of cottage and small and medium - scale industries); and
- Other services of a community development nature.

COMPONENTS OF AGRARIAN REFORM

Agrarian reform has at least two (2) components.

- (1) Land distribution – The most important component of agrarian reform is land redistribution – the most effective way of providing security of tenure to tillers of the soil. This is the meat of agrarian reform – to make the tillers of the land the owners of the land they are tilling and to insure their right to just share in the fruits of their labor.
- (2) Companion measures – It is NOT enough that the tillers become the owners of the land they till. They must also become successful owners of the land. In other words, after the proper redistribution of the land and after transferring ownership to the users of the land, the other problem must now be tackled and solved, namely: the increased, maximized and modernized utilization of the land for the benefit of NOT only the new owner but that of society. This would mean the creation and development of new social institutions that could effectively carry out the other companion measures of agrarian reform. The farmers need to be provided with the necessary skills and know-how to enhance their productivity.

COMPANION MEASURES TO LAND DISTRIBUTION

- (1) Credit – The first companion measure required for a successful land redistribution program is the extension of credit to the tiller-owners on easy terms. When the farmers becomes the owner of the land he tills, he has to shoulder the whole capitalization of his farming operations. He has to provide for the seeds, the transplanting, the fertilizers, his family's subsistence till the crop is harvested, etc.
- (2) Modern and better methods of production – This is the second most needed companion measure for a successful land redistribution program. There is need for improved soil fertility, etc. In this regard, government help is needed but government efforts in technological matters will not succeed without the cooperation of the farmers. This principle applies in the case of agricultural production. The agricultural scientist or technician will have to depend not only on the information to be given by the farmers with respect to their farms and the results of the agricultural methods in them, but also on the free acts of the farmers themselves which are essential for the implementation of many agricultural projects for mass benefit.

Therefore, the cooperation of the farmers is essential. They should participate in every process of experimentation and formulation of new methods. In this way, there will be no need to convince the farmers of methods later on because they participated in their formulation. But all these can only be done if the farmers were organized.

- (3) Marketing facilities, equitably pricing, infrastructure – Another important companion measure for a successful land redistribution program is the provision for marketing facilities and equitable price for the farmers' produce and the accompanying infrastructure requirements needed to transport and the produce from the barrio to the town or city.

- (4) Cooperatives – It is evident that all these companion measures cannot be done without the organized and conscious efforts of the farmers themselves. Thus, the necessity for cooperatives and other forms of social organizations. On the other hand, these cooperatives can, in turn, be the most effective channels for proper agricultural planning for both the micro and macro levels that will ensure food sufficiency in terms of adequate supply and proper distribution. Cooperatives and other forms of social organization can also serve as a vehicle for information and the effective molding of a responsive public opinion. (Instructor's Manual, note 1 at pp 60-61).

CONSTITUTIONAL PROVISIONS RELEVANT TO AGRARIAN REFORM

The provisions of the 1987 Constitution relevant to agrarian reform are NOT confined in one article. They can not be found solitary and alone in one single article of said Charter considering that agrarian reform covers all aspect of institutional development including tenure, production, and supporting services and structures, and related institutions such as local government units, public administration in rural areas, rural education and rural social welfare institutions, farmers' organizations, law enforcement agencies, etc. However, only the more pertinent ones will be considered. (De Leon, Agrarian Reform and Taxation, 2000)

Article II, Sec. 9, 1987 Constitution – “The State shall promote a just and dynamic social order that will ensure the prosperity and independence of the nation and free the people from poverty through policies that provide adequate social services, promote full employment, a rising standard of living, and an improved quality of life for all.”

Article II, Sec.19, 1987 Constitution – “The State shall develop a self-reliant and independent national economy effectively controlled by Filipinos.”

Section nineteen (19) states the guidelines in the development of the national economy: economic self-reliance, independent national economy, and effective Filipino control of the national economy.

Article II, Sec.21, 1987 Constitution – “The State shall promote a comprehensive rural development and agrarian reform.”

Article III, Sec. 4, 1987 Constitution – “NO LAW shall be passed abridging the freedom of speech, of expression, or of the press, or the right of the people peaceably to assemble and petition the government for redress of grievances.”

Article III, Sec. 8, 1987 Constitution – “The right of the people, including those employed in the public and private sectors, to form unions, associations, or societies for purposes not contrary to law shall not be abridged.”

Article III, Sec. 9, 1987 Constitution – “Private property shall NOT be taken for public use without JUST compensation.”

Article XII, Sec. 1, 1987 Constitution – “The goals of the national economy are a more equitable distribution of opportunities, income, and wealth; a sustained increase in the amount of goods and services produced by the nation for the benefit of the people; and an expanding productivity as the key to raising the quality of life for all, especially the underprivileged.

The State shall promote industrialization and full employment based on sound agricultural development and agrarian reform, through industries that make full and efficient use of human and natural resources and which are competitive in both domestic and foreign markets. However, The State shall protect Filipino enterprises against unfair foreign competition and trade practices.

In the pursuit of these goals, all sectors of the economy and all regions of the country shall be given optimum opportunity to develop. Private enterprises, including corporations, cooperatives and similar collective organizations shall be encouraged to broaden the base of their ownership."

Article XII, Sec. 2, 1987 Constitution – "All lands of the public domain, waters, minerals, coal, petroleum, and other mineral oils, all forces of potential energy, fisheries, forests or timber, wildlife, flora and fauna, and other natural resources are owned by the State. With the exception of agricultural lands, all other natural resources shall not be alienated. The exploration, development, and utilization of natural resources shall be under the full control and supervision of the State..."

Lands of the public domain are classified into:

- Agricultural
- Forest or timber
- Mineral Lands
- National parks

Adoption of Filipino First policy

Article XII, Sec. 12, 1987 Constitution – "The State shall promote the preferential use of Filipino labor, domestic materials and locally produced goods, and adopt measures that help make them competitive."

AGENCY TO PROMOTE VIABILITY AND GROWTH OF COOPERATIVES

Article XII, Sec. 15, 1987 Constitution – "The Congress shall create an agency to promote the viability and growth of cooperatives as instruments for social justice and economic development."

The Constitution gives proper recognition to the important role that Cooperatives can play as "instruments for social justice and economic development" R.A. 6939 creates the Cooperatives Development Authority under the Office of the President to carry out the provisions of the Act.

Article XIII, Sec. 1, 1987 Constitution – "The Congress shall give highest priority to the enactment of measures that protect and enhance the right of all the people to human dignity, reduce social, economic, and political inequalities, and remove cultural inequalities by equitably diffusing wealth and political power for the common good.

"The State shall regulate the acquisition, ownership, use, and disposition of property and its increments."

Article XIII, Sec. 2, 1987 Constitution – "The promotion of social justice shall include the commitment to create economic opportunities based on freedom of initiative and self-reliance."

Article XIII, Sec. 3, 1987 Constitution – “The State shall regulate the relations between workers and employers, recognizing the right of labor to its just share in the fruits of production and the right of enterprises to reasonable returns on investments, and to expansion and growth.”

Article XIII, Sec. 4, 1987 Constitution – “The State shall, by law, undertake an agrarian reform program founded on the right of farmers and regular farmworkers, who are LANDLESS, to own directly or collectively the lands they TILL or in the case of other farmworkers, to receive a just share of the fruits thereof. To this end, the State shall encourage and undertake the just distribution of all agricultural lands, subject to such priorities and reasonable retention limits as the Congress may prescribe, taking into account ecological, development, or equity considerations, and subject to the payment of JUST COMPENSATION. In determining retention limits the State shall respect the right of small landowner. The State shall further provide incentives for voluntary land-sharing.”

THE CODE OF AGRARIAN REFORMS (R.A. 3844)

Beneficiaries under the Code

The Code of Agrarian Reforms of the Philippines was enacted specially to reach four underprivileged groups marking up the majority of the agricultural population, each of which represents a corresponding group of problems.

- Tenant farmers – The share crop or “kasama” system, a carry-over from the Spanish colonizers, which deprives the farmer of a just share of the produce, makes his tenure insecure; expose him to usurious practices and to perpetual indebtedness; and forces him to be idle after a few months spent on the farm. Under the Code, share tenancy is automatically converted to leasehold and landless farmers are given a chance to own the lands they till;
- Agricultural wage-earners or farm workers – The helpless position of these workers, unorganized and unprotected by laws on labor standards. Under the Code, they are given, in general, all the rights and opportunities now enjoyed by industrial workers;
- Settlers including migrant workers – The ineffective and haphazard settlement system which prevented those who moved from highly tenanted areas from taking up productive lives in public agricultural lands. Under the Code, they are given help in acquiring titles to public lands and solving their problems; and
- Owner-cultivators of less than family-size farms – The lack of credit, irrigation, marketing and information facilities among them, aggravated their lack of organization. Under the Code, they are to be given opportunities to purchase additional lands.

(Pres. Diosdado Macapagal's Message to Congress, March 19, 1963).

LANDS COVERED BY THE CODE

1. Tenanted areas – They are areas worked on by the tenant-farmer either under the shares cropping or lease hold systems. Under Presidential decree No. 27, only private agricultural lands primarily devoted to rice or corn are covered;

2. Landed estates – They are private agricultural lands acquired by the Department of Agrarian reform through the Land Bank for redistribution to the tenant-tillers both under the Code and previous laws, under the scheme of family-size farms;
3. Old settlements – They are the settlement projects developed by the Department of Agrarian Reform from the public domain and are still under its administration and management; and
4. Proposed settlements – They are of the public domain either earmarked for settlement purposes or have potentials for such purposes. Landless farmers and former dissidents who have NOT acquired lands from tenanted agricultural lands are located farms lots in resettlement projects. In these areas, farms families are resettled in an orderly manner and their agricultural activities are initially supported by the government.

COOPERATIVE CODE OF THE PHILIPPINES (Republic Act # 6938)

The Cooperatives Development Authority (CDA) under the Office of the President, created under R.A. # 6939, is the new agency now charged with the authority and responsibility for implementing the program of cooperatives development. Since functions in connection with the development of cooperatives are centralized under the CDA, agrarian reform has to be actively supported by said agency in terms of services towards the organization of cooperatives.

Article XII, Sec. 15, 1987 Constitution – “Create an agency to promote the viability and growth of cooperatives as instruments for social justice and economic development.”

AGRARIAN REFORM PROGRAM AND COOPERATIVES DEVELOPMENT PROGRAM COMPARED

1. Objectives of agrarian reform – The Agrarian Reform Program breaks up the ownership of the land and apportions this ownership among tenant-farmers who are tilling the soil.
2. Objectives of cooperatives development – The Cooperative Development Program seeks to UNITE their interests, talents, and resources in special kinds of organization whereby our farmers can perform better not only but also farmers and citizens, they, therefore, become better human beings.
3. Cooperatives must complement agrarian reform – The act of breaking up must, therefore, be accomplished by the act of consolidating. Agrarian reform must be accompanied by the development of cooperatives. The redistribution of land ownership in order to give farmers a more dignified existence must be followed with measures to consolidate the management of land, so that our farmers can increase productivity and efficiency at the same time. The breaking up of outmoded, paternalistic and oppressive relationship between the landlords and tenants must be complemented by the creation of new relationship based on mutual assistance and equality – such as the loyalties of farmers to their organizations or to the good for their community. (De Leon, Agrarian Reform and Taxation, 2000)

SPECIFIC OBJECTIVES OF THE PROGRAM

- Prepare the farmers to become better producers;
- Enforce timely payment of land amortization;
- Enforce savings among farmers;

- Encourage farmers to perform economic activities collectively; and
- Develop a cooperative system, a unified and properly operating set of cooperative institutions and supportive agencies (Clemente Terso, Jr., "The Cooperative Development Program of the DLGCD, "in Seminar Papers on Agrarian Reform, published by the Agrarian Reform Institute, U.P., p 85.)

Meaning of Cooperative

A cooperative is a duly registered association of persons, with a common bond of interest, who have voluntarily joined together to achieve a lawful common social or economic end making equitable contributions to the capital requirements and accepting a fair share of the risks and benefits of the undertaking in accordance with universally accepted cooperative principle (Article 3, R.A. # 6938).

COOPERATIVE PRINCIPLES

- Open and voluntary – Membership in a cooperative shall be voluntary and available to all individual regardless of their social, political, racial or religious background or beliefs;
- Democratic control – "Create an agency to promote the viability and growth of cooperatives as instruments for social justice and economic development." Cooperatives are democratic organizations. Their affairs shall be administered by persons elected or appointed in a manner agreed upon by the members. Members of primary cooperatives shall have equal voting rights on a one-member, one-vote principle. However, in the case of secondary and tertiary cooperatives, the provisions of Article 37 of the Cooperative Code shall apply (Article 37 – Voting System).
- Limited interest in capital – Share capital shall receive a strictly limited rate of interest;
- Division of NET surplus – Net surplus arising out of the operations of a cooperative belong to its members and shall be equitably distributed for cooperative development, common services, indivisible reserve fund, and for limited interest on capital and / or patronage refund in the manner provided in the code and in the articles of Cooperation or BY-LAWS;
- Cooperative Education – All cooperatives shall make provisions for the education of their members, officers and employees and of the general public based on the principles of cooperation; and
- Cooperation among cooperatives – All cooperatives, in order to best serve the interest of their members and communities shall actively cooperate with other cooperatives at local, national, and international levels (Article 4, R. A. 6938).

ORGANIZATION OF COOPERATIVES

A cooperative may be organized and registered by at least fifteen (15) persons for any or all of the following:

1. To encourage thrift and savings mobilization among the members;
2. To generate funds and extend credit to the members for productive and provident purposes;
3. To encourage among members, systemic production and marketing;
4. To provide goods and services and other requirements to the members;

5. To develop expertise and skills among its members;
6. To acquire lands and provide housing benefits for the members;
7. To insure against losses of the members;
8. To promote and advance the economic, social and educational status of the members;
9. To establish, own, lease or operate cooperative banks, cooperative wholesale and retail complexes, insurance and agricultural/industrial processing enterprises, and public markets;
10. To coordinate and facilitate the activities of cooperatives; and
11. To undertake any all other activities for effective and efficient implementation of the provisions of the Code. (Article 6, R.A. 6938).

Objectives of cooperatives

1. The primary objectives of every cooperative is to provide goods and services to its members and thus enable them to attain increased income and savings, investment, productivity and purchasing power and promote among them equitable distribution of net surplus through maximum utilization of economies of scale, cost-sharing and risk-sharing without, however, conducting the affairs of the cooperative charitable purposes.
2. A cooperative shall provide maximum economic benefits to its members, teach them efficient ways of doing things in a cooperative manner and propagate cooperative practices and new ideas in business and management and allow the lower income groups to increase their ownership on the wealth of the nations (Article 7, R.A. 6938).

Privileges of cooperatives

1. Cooperatives enjoy the privilege of depositing their sealed cash boxes or containers, documents or any valuable papers in the safes of the municipal or city treasurers and other government offices free of charge;
2. Cooperatives organized among government employees, notwithstanding any law or regulation to the contrary, enjoy the free use of any available space in their agency whether owned or rented by the government;
3. In areas where appropriate cooperatives exist, the preferential right to supply government institutions and agencies, rice, corn and other grains, fish and other marine products, meat, eggs, milk, vegetables, tobacco and other agricultural commodities produced by their members is granted to the cooperatives by the appropriate government agencies;
4. Preferential treatment in the allocation of fertilizers and in rice distribution are granted to cooperatives by the appropriate government agencies;
5. Cooperatives and their federations, such as market vendor cooperatives, have preferential rights in management of public markets and or/ lease of public market facilities stall or spaces;
6. Credit cooperatives and/or federations are entitled to loans, credit lines, rediscounting of their loan notes, and other eligible papers with the Development Bank of the Philippines, The Philippine National Bank, the Land Bank of the Philippines, and other financial institutions except the Central Bank of the Philippines;

7. Cooperatives transacting business with the government or any of its political subdivisions or any of its controlled corporations or instrumentalities, are exempt from prequalification bidding requirements; and
8. Cooperatives enjoy the privilege of being represented by the provincial or city fiscal (now prosecutor) or the Office of the Solicitor General, free of charge except when the adverse party is the Republic of the Philippines (Article 63, R.A.6938)

TAXATION

Taxation is the act of laying a tax, i.e., the process or means by which the sovereign, through its law-making body, raises revenues to defray the necessary expenses of government. Expressed in another way, it is a method of apportioning the cost of government among those who in some measure are privileged to enjoy its benefits and must, therefore, bear its burdens. (Hector De Leon quoting Am.Jur.34; 1, Cooley 72 -73)

Importance and purpose of taxation

The purpose of taxation on the part of the government is to provide funds with which to promote the general welfare and protection of its citizens, and to enable it to finance its multifarious activities (Hector De Leon quoting Am.Jur. 34 -35)

TAXES

Taxes are the enforced proportional contributions from persons and property levied by the law-making body of the state by virtue of its sovereignty for the support of the government and all public needs. (Hector de Leon quoting Cooley)

Characteristics

1. It is an enforced contribution – A tax is NOT a voluntary payment or donation and its imposition is in NO way dependent upon the will or assent of the persons taxed (Hector De Leon quoting AM. Jur. 38 -39)
2. It is generally payable in money – Unless qualified by law, the terms “taxes” or “tax” is usually understood to be a pecuniary burden – an exaction to be discharged alone in money which must be in legal tender;
3. It is proportionate in character – A tax is laid by some rule of apportionment according to which the persons or property share the public burden. It is ordinarily based on the ability to pay;
4. It is levied on persons or property – A tax be imposed on acts or transactions or contracts. In each case, however it is only a person who pays the tax;
5. It is levied by the state which has jurisdiction over the person or property – The persons and property must be subject to the jurisdiction of the taxing state. This is necessary in order that the tax can be enforced. The taxing power of a state necessarily stops at its boundary lines;
6. It is levied by the law-making body of the state – The power to tax is a legislative power which only the legislative body (national or local) can exercise through the enactment of statutes or ordinances. The power to tax is also granted by the Constitution and by law to local government units (provinces, cities, municipalities and barangays) but the power of the latter is subject to such limitations as may be provided by law; and

7. It is levied for public purposes – Taxation involves and a tax constitutes, a charge or burden imposed to provide income for public purposes – the support of the government, the administration of the law, or the payment of public expenses.

THE WORLD OF RIZAL'S TIME

Historical condition

- On the formation of national communities, Italy and Germany succeeded in their unification movements;
- Italy under the able leadership and guidance of the triad of Count Cavour, Garibaldi and King Victor Emmanuel drove the last foreign enemies from Italian soil and unified Italy with Rome as capital city;
- The Prussians led by their Iron Chancellor, Otto Von Bismarck, defeated the French in the Franco Prussian War and set up the German Empire;
- Western imperialism, however, gained momentum during the century of Rizal's times;
- Great Britain during the reign of "Queen Victoria" emerged as the leading colonial power with the setting of a global colonial empire;
- The Chinese Manchu Dynasty was forced to cede Hong Kong to the British after their defeat during the First Opium Wars;
- India, Burma and Malaya were consolidated to British Empire during the 19th century;
- France in 1858-1863, with the help of Filipino troops under Spanish officers captured Vietnam; annexed Cambodia (1863) and Laos (1893) to French Indo-China;
- 19th century – dynamic period in European history;
- It was a century of rapid progress and radical changes;
- Social, political, and economic developments occurred w/c had directly and indirectly affected the Philippines;
- The modernization of living through industrialization and scientific progress.

Political condition

- The political changes in relationship between the government and the people brought about by:
 - Liberal ideas, democracy and the struggle for nationhood, were the landmarks of change during that period.
- Industrialization
- By the 18th century, Europe supplied various products like woolen cloth, ship parts and accessories, hardwood, etc.
 - The necessity to meet this demand led to the inventions of labor saving machines.
 - The use of machines in the manufacture of goods led to shift from manual work to machine work, and from the domestic system to the factory system.

Industrialization

- Rapidly gained momentum in the 2nd half of the 19th century, this was accelerated by the discovery of oil and electricity as sources of power and industrial energy.
- Invention of the internal combustion engine heralded the coming of the motorized age.
- Railways and steamships were also constructed.
- The factory system employed thousands of workers and a new group of products called capitalists, also emerged.
- Poor workers sold their labor to the capitalists.
- Capitalists exploited the workers but with the spread of democracy, the laborers began to demand increased wages, shorter hours of work and other reforms.
- Competition for markets became stiff.

Social Science

Scientific Developments

- With industrialization came scientific progress. These two developments almost rose at the same time for technology and science depended on each other.
- Factories multiplied in number.
- Vast quantities of coal and other minerals were needed to fill the requirements of such expansion.

Socialism

- Believes that government should own and control the means of production for the benefit of the many and not only for a few individuals such as capitalists.
- Karl Marx in 1848 declared that only a violent revolution could improve the lot of the proletariat (workers).
- He espoused the abolition of private ownership of land, and the centralization of economic planning.
- The workers, as a result of Marxist agitation, became more aware of their role and power in the economic system of their country.

Democracy

- The most significant achievements in the 19th century was the growing of European appreciation for the worth and dignity of individual and his right to participate in government.
- American president Abraham Lincoln defined democracy in his Gettysburg Address as "the government of the people, by the people and for the people."

Spain during Rizal's time

- The 19th century was the twilight period of Spain as colonial power.

Why twilight?

- Spain lost one by one her rich colonies in South and Central America.
- She (Spain) lost Paraguay in 1811
 - ...Argentina in 1816
 - ...Chile in 1818
 - ...Colombia in 1819
 - ...Ecuador in 1822
 - ...Venezuela in 1821
 - ...Peru in 1821
 - ...Bolivia in 1825

The Philippines during Rizal's time

Social system

- Filipinos had their own culture, government and religion.
- The Spanish colonizers forced them to accept foreign culture and Catholicism that they never completely understood.

Limpieza de sangre (purity of blood)

- Creating social ranking among various groups.
- The social structure was pyramidal in form with the Spanish Peninsulares occupying the APEX while the INDIOS or natives were placed at the base of the pyramid.

Political system

- King
- Ministro De Ultramar (Ministry of Colonies)
- Gobernador General (National government)
- Alcalde mayores/alcadia (Provincial)
- Cabildo/Ayuntamiento (City)
- Gobernadorcillo (Town)
- Cabeza de Barangay (Barangay)

Frailocracia

"Rule of the friars"

Education

- Royal Decree of 1863 – Establishment of schools for elementary pupils.
- Royal Decree of 1865 – Establishment of schools for secondary students.
- Moret Decree of 1870 – Intended to secularize higher education in the Philippines. The friars vigorously OPPOSED that idea of government controlling the educational system.

ANCESTRY

- Rizal was of mixed racial origin. He descended from a hard working and intelligent Chinese merchant, Domingo Lam-co, who married Inez de la Costa, a Chinese mestiza from the Chinese community in Manila, the family migrated to Binan and became tenants of the Dominican friars.
- Lam-co's son, Francisco who was to be Rizal's great grandfather, was appointed Captain of Biñan in 1783. The family adopted the surname Mercado complying with the Claveria Decree, which mandated that all Filipinos use Spanish surname.
- Francisco Mercado and his wife, Bernarda Monicha had two children: Juan and Clemente. Juan married Cirila Alejandra, also a Chinese mestiza. They bore 14 children, one of whom was Francisco, Jose's father.

MATERNAL

- The family of Teodora Alonzo, Jose's mother was a prominent than that of the Mercado's. The Alonzos had engineers, lawyers, priests and government officials.

JOSE'S IMMEDIATE FAMILY

- Francisco Mercado studied Latin and Philosophy at the College of San Jose in Manila. Jose described him as "a model of fathers."
- Jose inherited from his father his sense of dignity and self respect and seriousness.
- Doña Teodora Alonzo was born in Santa Manila. She was a talented and remarkable woman. Jose admired and adored her.

"My mother is not a woman of ordinary culture. She knows literature and speaks Spanish better than I do...She even corrected my poems and gave me wise advice when I was studying rhetoric...she is a mathematician and she reads many books..."

LOVE OF COUNTRY

Rizal's first essay "The Love of Country" was written when he was 21. It was published first in Diariong Tagalog, a nationalist newspaper, on August 20, 1882, under the name of Laong Laan. It was subsequently published in La Solidaridad on October 31, 1890.

TO THE YOUNG WOMEN OF MALOLOS

In the letter dated February 1889, Rizal congratulated the women of Malolos for their courage in petitioning Governor General Valerino Weyler, that they should be permitted to learn Spanish lessons. He was glad that at last, some Filipino women were asserting their rights to education.

SOBRE LA INDOLENCIA DE LOS FILIPINOS (THE INDOLENCE OF THE FILIPINOS)

Rizal's longest essay was published in five installments in the La Solidaridad from July 15 to September 15, 1890.

FILIPINAS DENTRO DE CIEN AÑOS (The Philippine a Century Hence)

This essay came out as a series of article in La Solidaridad on 30 Sept. 1889, 31 October 1889, 15 December 1889 and 1 February 1890. Rizal envisioned the future for the Philippines in the essay. What would become of the Philippines within a century? Would it become independent? Would it become a province of Spain or would become a colony of other nations?

BRINDIS

This was Rizal's memorable speech honoring the painters Juan Luna and Felix Resurrecion Hidalgo at the commemorative banquet on June 25, 1884. Luna won first prize for his painting "Spolarium" while Hidalgo won a silver medal for his "Virgins Exposed to the Populace" at the art exhibit in Madrid.
