7. C – Peter Pan – Peter Pan is a character created by Scottish novelist and playwright J. M. Barrie (1860–1937). A mischievous boy who can fly and magically refuses to grow up, Peter Pan spends his never-ending childhood adventuring on the small island of Neverland as the leader of his gang the Lost Boys, interacting with mermaids, Indians, fairies, pirates, and (from time to time) meeting ordinary children from the world outside.
8. C – 14 – The term "sonnet" derives from the Occitan word sonnet and the Italian word Soneto, both meaning "little song" or "little sound". By the thirteenth century, it had come to signify a poem of fourteen lines that follows a strict rhyme scheme and specific structure.
9. B – Lewis Carroll – Some of H.G. Wells' works are "The Time Machine", "The Island of Doctor Moreau", "The Invisible Man", "The War of the Worlds". He is also known as the Father of Science Fiction. Mark Twain is most popular in his "Tom Sawyer" and "The Adventures of Huckleberry Finn". E.B. White is well known of her novel "Charlotte's Web"
10. D – Lewis Carroll's poem "The Walrus and the Carpenter"
11. B – The Old Testament Book of Exodus – Moses fled Egypt and married Zipporah. "And she bares him a son, and he called his name Gershom: for he said, I have been a stranger in a strange land." Exodus 2:22 Authorized (King James) Version.
12. A – A verse in the nursery rhyme "Humpty Dumpty" – Robert Penn Warren is the only person to have won Pulitzer Prizes for both fiction and poetry. A commemorative postage stamp was issued in the United States in 2005 to honor the 100th anniversary of his birth. Stage plays, television versions, several movies and even a grand opera have been based on Warren's novel.
13. A – 'Animal Farm' was written by George Orwell, and is a satire on revolution and the corruption of power. One of the best-known lines from it is 'all animals are equal, but some animals are more equal than others. The rejection notice implies that the publisher did not actually read the book or totally misunderstood it if he did. 'Water ship Down' was written by Richard Adams and published in 1972. Anna Sewell wrote 'Black Beauty', which appeared in 1877 and Beatrix Potter was the author of 'The Tale of Peter Rabbit' from 1902.
14. B – John le Carré – This was a rejection notice for 'The Spy Who Came in From the Cold', which found another publisher in 1963. Le Carré had worked for both MI5 and MI6, the British intelligence services, and left to become an author full time following the success of this novel. Among Len Deighton's novels are 'The Picross File' and Eric Ambler wrote 'The Mask of Dimitrios'. Fleming, of course, is the creator of probably the most famous spy of all in James Bond.
15. A – Pearl S. Buck – One rejection notice read 'I regret that the American public is not interested in anything on China'. The novel was published in 1931 and won the Pulitzer Prize the following year. Pearl S Buck wrote numerous other novels, including 'East Wind, West Wind', short stories, biographies and non-fiction works and won the Nobel Prize for Literature in 1938.
16. D – Vincent Van Gogh – The book was published in 1934 and was so successful that it was made into a film of the same name, starring Kirk Douglas, in 1956. Irving Stone also wrote about all the other names given as options. Michelangelo was the subject of 'The Agony and the Ecstasy', published in 1961 and also filmed, with Charlton Heston, in 1965. John Noble, an American artist, was the subject of 'The Passionate Journey' from 1949. Sigmund Freud, the psychoanalyst, was covered in 'The Passions of the Mind' in 1971.

17. B – The Parson – Despite the immorality that is apparent amongst the clergy, hope manifests itself in the form of the Parson, who is presented as an almost Christ-like figure. Although materially poor, he is spiritually empowered, for “riche he was” of both “HOOLY THOGHT and WERK”. Yet for every trap that Chaucer’s Parson has avoided, there are thousands that have fallen into them, and in light of this, the goodness of Chaucer’s Parson only serves to heighten the unruliness that is present in everybody else. For in the “General Prologue” he is the only individual that completely measures up to the strict Christian ideal, which is something even the Church itself does not.
18. D – The Pardoner – The Pardoner, is certainly presented as one of the most corrupt of all Chaucer’s pilgrims (along with the Summoner), making both “the person and the people his apes”. His deception and “feyned flaterye” convinces simple folks to purchase his phony relics. He cheats and manipulates all that believe in the sanctity of the Church and the morality of those that represent it, so much so, that Chaucer himself can find nothing good to say about him. For though “He was in churches a noble ecclesiast”, this is merely an act, for he would “PRECHE, and WEL AFFILE his tongue” for the sole purpose of winning silver from the crowd.
19. D – He also translated “The Siege of Thebes.” “The Fall of Princes” is based on another work by Boccaccio. Lydgate is little known today, but in his own time he was nearly as renowned as Chaucer.
20. A – Sir Gawain and the Green Knight – The author of this Arthurian tale is unknown, but he is thought to have also written the poems “Patience”, “Pearl”, and “Purity.”
