QUESTION 1

According to Edgar Dale's Cone of Experience, which type of learning activity provides the most effective and lasting learning because learners directly participate in the experience?

- A. Reading textbooks
- B. Listening to lectures
- C. Watching demonstrations
- D. Doing the actual task

QUESTION 1

According to Edgar Dale's Cone of Experience, which type of learning activity provides the most effective and lasting learning because learners directly participate in the experience?

- A. Reading textbooks
- B. Listening to lectures
- C. Watching demonstrations
- D. Doing the actual task

Explanation: Dale explained that the more learners use their senses and get involved, the better they remember. When you do the real thing, you practice and experience it yourself—not just see or hear it. That's why it sticks longer in the mind compared to just reading, listening, or watching.

The closer to real experience, the better the learning sticks.
