

English Major – Campus Journalism

BACKGROUND OF JOURNALISM

Definition of Journalism

- It comes from the Latin word “diurnal” which means “daily”.
- Its origin can be traced back to ancient Rome with the Acta Diurna, which means “daily events”, a news sheet circulating before 59 BCE.
- According to Meriam Webster, journalism is the “occupation of writing for publication in newspaper and other periodicals”.
-

History Of Journalism

- Del Superior Gobierno: The first ever newspaper published in the Philippines. Its editor is the Spanish Governor General and primarily focused on news from Spain.
- La Solidaridad: The official newspaper of the Propaganda Movement. Graciano Lopez-Jaena served as its first editor, with Marcelo H. del Pilar taking over as its second editor later in 1889.
- Kalayaan: It served as the official organ of the revolutionaries from the Katipunan.
- Diariong Tagalog: The first bilingual newspaper in the Philippines.
- The Manila Times: It is the oldest existing newspaper in the Philippines.

- The Gazette: Recognized as the first student publication in the English-speaking world.
- The Coconut: The oldest and first officially recorded student publication in the Philippines which was published by the Manila High School.
- El Liliputiense: Along with the College Folio of The University of the Philippines, El Liliputiense of the University of Santo Tomas marked the beginning of campus journalism in the Philippines. It is one of the oldest campus papers in the country.
- The College Folio: Campus paper of the University of the Philippines.

Types of Journalism

Based on Scope/Function

1. News Journalism: Reports timely, factual events (hard news)
2. Feature Journalism: Human-interest stories; uses creative storytelling
3. Editorial Journalism: Expresses opinions; aims to persuade or influence.
4. Sports Journalism: Reports sports events with a mix of facts and vivid language.
5. Science Journalism: Makes scientific information accessible to general readers.
6. Investigative Journalism: In-depth reporting; uncovers hidden truths, corruption, or wrongdoing.

English Major – Campus Journalism

7. Developmental Journalism: Focuses on social issues like poverty, health, and education.

Based on Medium/Delivery Platform

1. Print Journalism: Newspapers, magazines, newsletters, flyers journals.
2. Non-print Journalism: TV news, radio, podcasts, YouTube
3. Digital Journalism: News websites, online articles, social media journalism
4. Broadcast Journalism: TV and radio reports, often live and spoken
5. Multimedia Journalism: Combines text, video, audio, and graphics in digital format (e.g., online news)

Based on Form or Mode of Communication

1. Written Journalism: Traditional articles, essays, columns, editorials, newsletters
2. Oral Journalism: Spoken form, especially in live reports, news radio, and interviews
3. Visual Journalism: Photojournalism, infographics, video reports, documentaries

Based on Periodical Nature

1. Daily: Newspapers like Philippine Daily Inquirer or Manila Bulletin
2. Weekly: Campus weeklies or community papers
3. Monthly/Quarterly: School magazines, literary folios

4. Special Editions: Event-based issues (e.g., graduation issue, election coverage)

CAMPUS JOURNALISM

Functions of Modern Campus Papers

1. Inform: Provide accurate, relevant information
2. Educate: Deepen understanding of issues and events.
3. Entertain: Engage readers through humor, storytelling, or human-interest pieces.
4. Watchdog: Monitor institutions and hold them accountable (police function); looks out for issues in the school.
5. Opinion: Influence opinions and persuade readers
6. Laboratory: Tool for budding journalists to train and practice their skills
7. Documentation: Document important school events
8. Developmental: Report the progress of the school; updates on on-going projects

The Charter of Student Press Rights

1. The student press, in accordance with the right of the United Nations Convention on Freedom of Information, should be free from regulations by any organ of the government or by the university authorities.
2. The student press, except where it is an official organ of a student organization, should be free from regulations by other student organizations.

English Major – Campus Journalism

3. The student press should be free from all pressures, financial and other external groups.
4. The student press should have free access to information and the same rights and privileges as afforded to regularly accredited journalists.

Code of Student Press Ethics

1. Accuracy and Unbiased Reporting: A student journalist should strive to report news impartially and accurately, thoroughly researching facts to back up published statements. They are personally accountable for everything they submit for publication.
2. Identity Transparency: When gathering information for a publication, the student journalist must clearly identify themselves as a representative of the student press.
3. Editorial Fairness: The editor must not reject a student viewpoint simply because it contradicts the editorial policy of the publication.
4. Correction of Mistakes: The editor should apologize in print for any mistakes at the first available opportunity.
5. Freedom of Expression and Fair Criticism: Student journalists should support freedom of speech by accurately gathering and publishing news, and by exercising the rights to fair comment and criticism.
6. Confidentiality and Integrity: A student journalist must respect the confidentiality of their sources and private documents. They should never falsify information, distort facts, or misrepresent documents.

7. Legal Awareness: Student journalists must familiarize themselves with the laws of libel and contempt of court in their country and adhere to international standards of ethical journalism.

Parts of a Campus Paper

Front Page

1. Nameplate: The engraved or printed name of the newspaper, such as The Manila Times or The Sun.
2. Ears: The little boxes on either side of the nameplate.
3. Index: A slugline indicating an important inside page story and the page where it is found.
4. Banner: The principal headline bearing the boldest and biggest type. It is the title of the most important news of the day.
 - a. Streamer: A type of banner headline that runs across the page.
5. Running head: A head made up of two or more lines
6. Headline: The title of any news story.
7. Kicker: A tagline placed above but smaller than a headline, also known as a teaser.
 - a. Hammer: A type of kicker that is bigger than a headline.
8. Deck: A subordinate headline placed immediately below its mother headline. It is also known as bank or readout.
9. Lead story: The most important or prominent article on the front page.

English Major – Campus Journalism

10. Lead: The beginning of a news story. It may be a word, a group of words, a sentence, or even a paragraph.
11. Byline: The name of the reporter who wrote the article.
12. Dateline: Shows where and when the story occurred. The dateline in a news story refers to the time when the event happened.
13. News story: The whole story of an event composed of the lead and the text which is the elaboration of the lead.
14. Columns: The horizontal line that divides the newspaper into parts. National papers are usually divided into eight columns, while school papers are commonly divided into five columns.
15. Column rule: The vertical line that divides the page into columns. The space that divides pages of newspapers is called the sunken rule.
16. Fold: The imaginary horizontal line that divides the newspaper equally into two.
17. Box: News materials enclosed by line rules.
18. Cut: Also known as a cliché, a cut is a metal plate bearing the newspaper's illustration.
19. Cutline: It is better known as a caption. It describes the photos and other art works in a newspaper.
 - a. Overline: A type of cutline written above the photo.
20. Credit line: Identifies the photographer or source of the story (ex: Photo by Mark Dimaguiba).

News Section

1. Campus News: Events, activities, announcements within the school
2. Local News: News that takes place within the country
3. Foreign News: News that takes place outside the country
4. Dateline News: An out-of-town news story.
5. Weather News: Usually a boxed forecast of the area.

Editorial Section

1. Editorial: The paper's official stand on a current issue
2. Editorial Cartoon: A drawing that expresses an opinion using humor or satire
3. Column: A personal opinion piece by a specific writer.
4. Letters to the Editor: Reader responses or opinions submitted for publication
5. Editorial liner: A short statement or quoted saying placed at the end of an editorial column or editorial to drive home a message.
6. Masthead: The editorial box usually found inside or on the last page, listing the staff members, adviser, school name, editorial policy, and sometimes contact info.

Sports Page

- Covers all school-related sports events and athletic achievements. It may include:

English Major – Campus Journalism

- News reports on games, tournaments, and tryouts
- Player or team profiles
- Game analysis and commentary
- Upcoming sports schedules

Special Features

- The Feature Section highlights the human-interest side of journalism. It aims to entertain, inform, inspire, or shed light on people, events, trends, or topics that aren't necessarily "newsworthy" in the traditional sense but are still relevant and engaging to readers.

Elements of News

1. Conflict: Disagreements, fights, legal battles, competitions create interest.
2. Immediacy of timeliness: News should be fresh. The more recent the event, the more newsworthy it is.
3. Proximity or nearness: The closer an event is to the audience, the more it matters to them.
4. Prominence: Celebrities, leaders, or public figures make a story more appealing.
5. Significance: Events with long-term effects or implications are highly newsworthy.
6. Names: When a well-known or respected name appears in the story, it draws attention.
7. Drama: Suspenseful and high-stakes events capture attention.

8. Oddity or unusualness: The strange and surprising attract attention.
9. Romance and adventure: Love-related stories often appeal to readers' emotions and curiosity. Exciting stories about journeys or missions are naturally engaging.
10. Progress: News about innovations or development inspires optimism.
11. Animals: Stories involving animals often evoke empathy or amusement.
12. Number: Big or surprising numbers attract attention and give scope.
13. Emotion: Emotional appeal (whether joy, sadness, pride) makes a story stick.

Types of News Stories

Scope/Origin

1. Local news: Reports of events that take place within the immediate locality (barangay, barrio, city).
2. National news: News that takes place within the country.
3. Foreign news: News that takes place outside the country.
4. Dateline news: News preceded by the date and place of origin or place where it was written or filed.

English Major – Campus Journalism

Chronology/Sequence

1. Advanced/anticipated: News released before the event actually happens. Sometimes referred to as dope or prediction. The journalist forecasts events expected to occur at a specific time in the future.
2. Spot news: Reports gathered and written immediately as the event unfolds. These are unplanned events needing instant coverage. The journalist is a direct witness to the scene.
3. Coverage news: Reports based on assigned beats. Both spot and coverage news are examples of direct or eyewitness reporting.
4. Follow-up news: A continuation or update of a previously reported story. It contains a new angle or lead and acts as a sequel in a developing series of articles.

Structure

1. Straight news: A straightforward factual report without added details or flair. It's meant to inform, uses a summary lead, and follows the inverted pyramid structure.
2. News feature: Based on facts but designed more to entertain than inform. It typically uses the narrative style or suspended interest format, which does not pass the cut-off test. In this type of reporting, the writer may add impressions and descriptions but should avoid biased commentary or editorializing. The writer's by-line usually accompanies the piece.

- a. Single-feature or one-incident story: Focuses on one specific event. The lead highlights a single detail, which is expanded in the following paragraphs. Each paragraph is logically structured to allow the article to be trimmed or extended as needed.
- b. Several-feature, multiple-angled, or composite story: Begins with multiple important facts in the lead, then elaborates on them one at a time. It combines two or more related yet distinct angles into one cohesive report.

Treatment

1. Fact story: A simple report presenting a single scenario or a sequence of related facts with the aim to inform. Uses the inverted pyramid format.
2. Action story: A narrative involving more than plain facts. Includes vivid events, character descriptions, witness accounts, and clarifying information. Examples include sports matches, contests, accidents, and war stories.
3. Speech report: A news article based on a public speech, talk, or address.
4. Quote story: Based on spoken or written records such as statements, speeches, letters, or interviews. These are converted into a news format using direct quotations.

English Major – Campus Journalism

5. Interview story: A news piece that comes from an interview session with a subject.
6. Hard news: Reports on significant and urgent events like murders, political meetings, and major speeches. These are immediately covered due to their relevance and importance.
7. Soft news: Reports on less urgent or lighter events like retiree tributes or scouting jamborees. These may not appeal to a broad audience right away.

Content

1. Routine story: Events like enrollment, graduations, and elections that occur regularly and are reported each year.
2. Police reports: Stories involving accidents, fires, disasters, or crimes.
3. Science news: Reports related to scientific discoveries or research.
4. Developmental news: Reports that focus on growth, progress, or social improvements.
5. Sports stories: Coverage of games, tournaments, athletic achievements, and competitions.

Minor Forms

1. News brief: A short item of news interest, written like a brief telegraphic message, giving mainly the result with details.

2. News bulletin: It is similar to the lead of a straight news story. Its aim is to just give the gist of the news.
3. News featurette: This is a short news feature usually used as a filler (ex: quirks in the news)
4. Flash: A bulletin that conveys the first word of an event.

Types of News Structure

1. Straight News Story

- a. The summary lead answers the most important Ws depending on which of the Ws is the most prominent.
- b. The body consists of the elaboration of the Ws and the H.

2. News Feature Story

- a. Single feature story:
 - i. Include the one-feature in the lead.
 - ii. Add in the body details which clarify and explain the lead

Single-Feature Story Structure

English Major – Campus Journalism

b. Multiple-angle story:

- i. Include all of the feature in a comprehensive lead in the order of their importance.
- ii. Explain and elaborate in the body each of the features in the order in which they are in the lead.

Several Feature Story Structure

3. Fact Story

- a. Arrange the facts in order of their importance

4. Action Story

- a. Write a summarizing lead.
- b. Relate the most important details in narrative or chronological order.
- c. Elaborate on the story by giving more details.

Action Structure Story

5. Speech Report, Quote, and Interview Stories

- a. Write a summarizing lead either by telling the gist or by using the most important quotation as a direct quote.
- b. Alternate quotes and summary in the body. The quotations may be direct, indirect, or both.

Quote Story Structure

English Major – Campus Journalism

Organizing News Stories

1. Inverted Pyramid: The most common structure in news writing. It presents the most important information at the beginning and tapers down to less essential details.

2. Narrative or Chronological: Tells the story in the order that events occurred.
3. Hourglass Structure: Combines the inverted pyramid with narrative structure. Begins like a traditional news story, then shifts into a chronological narrative.

- a. News hook: The specific angle, event, or detail that makes a story timely, relevant, or interesting. It answers the question: "Why tell this story now?"
- b. Nutgraf: A paragraph (or two) that explains the context, significance, or "so what?" of the story. It usually comes after an anecdotal or soft lead and tells readers why the story matters.
- c. Background: Supporting information that provides context or explains the history behind a story.
- d. Cosmic quote: A striking, memorable, or profound quote that encapsulates the essence of the story. Often used as a kicker or highlight to add depth and emotional impact.

English Major – Campus Journalism

NEWS WRITING

Writing the Lead

Types of Lead

1. Conventional or Summary Lead: This type of lead is typical in straightforward news and immediately answers the essential elements of a story (the 5 W's and/or H). It may take one of the following forms:

- a. WHO Lead – Used when the person involved is more important than the event itself.
Example: "Cardo Dalisay saved three children from a burning building."
- b. WHAT Lead – Used when the event or action is more significant than the person.
Example: "The application period for the Licensure Examination for Teachers has been rescheduled."
- c. WHERE Lead – Used when the location is more noteworthy than the people involved.
Example: "In the remote village of Siquijor, archaeologists have discovered a 2,000-year-old temple."
- d. WHEN Lead – Less common since readers generally expect the story to be timely. However, it's helpful when reporting on specific deadlines, holidays, or key dates.

Example: "At midnight tonight, the new traffic regulations will come into effect."

- e. WHY Lead – Used when the reason behind an event is more significant than the event itself.

Example: "Due to increasing pollution levels, the city is enforcing stricter environmental laws."

- f. HOW Lead – Used when the method or process behind an event is more intriguing or unexpected.

Example: "Using only a broom and a bucket, the janitor stopped the flood in the main hall."

2. Grammatical Beginning Lead: These leads begin with a specific grammatical structure to convey the key message. Some types include:

- a. Prepositional Phrase Lead – Starts with a prepositional phrase, giving context or location.
Example: "In the heart of the city, a new park is opening this weekend."

- b. Infinitive Phrase Lead – Begins with the infinitive form of a verb (to + verb).

Example: "To combat rising pollution, the government is introducing a new initiative."

- c. Participial Phrase Lead – Starts with the present or past participle form of a verb.

Example: "Dressed like priests, the robbers were able to enter the bank and steal over P1,000,000."

- d. Gerundial Phrase Lead – Begins with a gerund (verb + ing) functioning as a noun.

English Major – Campus Journalism

Example: "Running a marathon requires both endurance and dedication."

- e. Clause Lead – Begins with a clause (can be independent or dependent), giving more detail.

Example: "Although the storm passed quickly, its damage was widespread."

- 3. Novelty Lead: This category uses creative or unique methods to draw readers in:

- a. Astonisher Lead – Uses an exclamation or an interjection to surprise the reader. Also known as punch lead.

Example: "What a sight! A deer was spotted in the middle of the downtown square."

- b. Contrast Lead – Presents two opposing ideas to create emphasis.

Example: "While some schools are cutting art programs, others are doubling their funding."

- c. Epigram Lead – Starts with a well-known saying or a catchy phrase.

Example: "'When life gives you lemons, make lemonade,' said the local bakery after winning the competition."

- d. Picture Lead – Describes a scene or event, helping readers imagine it vividly.

Example: "Under a golden sunset, the children raced along the beach, their laughter echoing across the waves."

- e. Background Lead – Similar to the picture lead but focuses more on the setting or context rather than the characters.

Example: "Amid the backdrop of an ancient temple, the archaeologists uncovered relics from a bygone era."

- f. Descriptive Lead – Uses few but powerful descriptive words to create a vivid image.

Example: "The cat, sleek and black, moved silently through the night."

- g. Parody Lead – Mimics or humorously imitates something well-known, such as a song or poem.

Example: "Taylor Swift has a blank space, but she's not writing Trump's name."

- h. One-word Lead – A single, powerful word that conveys the essence of the story.

Example: "Victory."

- i. Quotation Lead – Begins with a striking quote that sets the tone for the story.

Example: "'This is the best day of my life!' shouted the marathon winner."

- j. Question Lead – Poses a question that the article will answer.

Example: "How did a local teacher go from classroom to courtroom?"

English Major – Campus Journalism

Structures of Headline

1. Flush left

- All lines are aligned to the left margin.
- Works with one or more lines.
- No strict rule on the number of words per line.

2. Dropline

- The first line is aligned left.
- The second line is indented slightly, and if there's a third, it might be centered or right-aligned.
- Creates a "stepping" visual effect.

3. Inverted Pyramid

- Each line is shorter than the one above it.
- Creates a pyramid shape turned upside-down.

4. Hanging Indention

- The first line is aligned to the left.
- The following lines are indented evenly.

5. Crossline or Barline

- A single line headline that goes across one column.
- If it goes across the whole page, it's called a streamer.

English Major – Campus Journalism

6. Boxed Headline

- The headline is placed inside a box to highlight it or make it more artistic.
- It can be:
 - A full box (around all sides)
 - A half box (around part of the headline)
 - A quarter box (maybe just the top or side)

7. Jump Story Headline

- When a story continues onto another page, that next part has its own headline.
- It can repeat the main headline or just give a hint followed by dots.

Dos and Don'ts in Writing Traditional Headlines

Dos in Writing Headlines

- Answer the W's: Include as many of the Who, What, When, Where, Why as possible.
- Summarize the Story Accurately: Don't include anything that's not in the story.
- Use Positive Tone: Prefer positive phrasing:
 - ✓ "School physician allays flu fear"
 - ✗ "Flu epidemic not rampant in city"
- Always Include a Verb: Either stated or implied in every line of the headline.
- Drop Unnecessary Words: Omit "a," "an," "the," and forms of "to be" unless needed:
 - ✓ "Reclaimed banks cause flood"
 - ✓ "Clinton is new US President" (Here, is helps clarity)
- Use Strong Words First: Place powerful or informative words in the first line if possible.
- Prefer Active Voice: Use passive only when needed (e.g., when the subject is unknown).
 - ✓ "Local Hi-Y aids flood victim"
 - ✗ "Flood victim aided by Local Hi-Y"
- Use Present Tense for Past Events:
 - ✓ "Mayor signs ordinance"
- Use a comma in place of "and"
 - ✓ "Reyes, Santos quit SC"

English Major – Campus Journalism

✗ “Reyes and Santos quit SC”

10. Use infinitive form for future events:

✓ “Lantern parade to cap X’mas affairs”

11. Use Numbers Wisely: Choose figures or words based on space and clarity.

12. Be Consistent with Style: Choose one headline style and stick with it:

- All caps: MAYOR APPROVES CLEANUP PLAN
- Cap and lower case: Mayor Approves Cleanup Plan
- Down style: Mayor approves cleanup plan

Don'ts in Writing Headlines

1. Avoid These Headline Types:

- Fat head – Words are jammed together.
✗ “BSP LAUNCHES DRIVE” (No spacing)
- Thin head – Too much spacing between words or letters.
✗ “B S P L A U N C H E S D R I V E”
- Label head – No verb or action.
- ✗ “CHRISTMAS PARTY”
- Wooden head – Weak or meaningless.
- ✗ “TO HOLD EXCURSION”
- Mandatory head – Sounds like a command.
- ✗ “HOLD DIALOG WITH PRINCIPAL”
- Screaming head – Bold and loud headline for a minor story. Avoid sensationalism.

2. Don't Repeat Info Across Decks: Each line should add something new.

3. Don't Editorialize: Avoid expressing opinion in headlines.

4. Don't Start with a Verb: Unless the subject is clear or implied from the previous line.

5. Don't End with a Preposition: And don't separate a preposition from its object:

✗ “Students vote for SSG officers”

6. Avoid Breaking Names or Abbreviations: Keep full names and abbreviations intact in one line.

7. Don't Repeat Key Words: Avoid redundancy in multi-line headlines.

8. Avoid Double Meanings: Make sure your headline can't be misunderstood or taken humorously.

9. Don't Invent Abbreviations: Use only well-known ones like PRC, DepEd, DOH.

10. Don't Abbreviate Days/Months Unless with Dates

✓ “Mon., Jan. 23”

✗ “Mon.” on its own

Punctuating Headlines

1. Do not end headlines with a period

2. Use a comma instead of “and”

✓ Self-reliance, discipline us at Baguio confab

✗ Self-reliance and discipline us at Baguio confab

English Major – Campus Journalism

3. Use a semicolon to separate two related thoughts:
Best placed at the end of the first line if it's a two-line headline.
✓ School joins Operasyon Linis;
P.E.–CAT boys drain estero
4. Use dashes sparingly
✓ Dashes are okay in smaller decks.
✗ Avoid in main headlines or large type.
5. Use single quotation marks (not double)
✓ Santiago: 'I was there'
✗ Santiago: "I was there"
6. Follow standard punctuation rules: Use colons, hyphens, apostrophes, etc., where appropriate—just keep it clean and clear.

WRITING THE EDITORIAL

Characteristics of a Good Editorial

1. It captures the interest of the readers
2. It has impact or force
3. Clearness of style
4. Has moral purpose
5. Sound reasoning
6. Has the power to influence public opinion
7. Leads logically to a conclusion
8. Present only one idea
9. Avoid wordiness (brevity)
10. Present facts and not mere opinion

Types of Editorials

Name	Purpose	Example
Information	To inform or clarify facts	Freedom of the Press
Interpretation	To explain meaning or significance	Freedom of the Press: Two Schools of Thought
Criticism	To point out faults or flaws and suggest a solution	School Admin Not Sincere in Press Freedom Promise
Commendation or Appreciation	To praise or recognize achievements	Laurels to Barangay Dance Troupe
Argumentation or Persuasion	To convince the reader of a specific stance	Freedom of the Press Not Violated
Entertainment	To amuse while suggesting truth	Miniskirt, Anyone?
Mood Editorial	To reflect on emotions, values, or philosophy	Those Wonderful People Called Parents
Special Occasion	To mark the meaning of a day or event	The Significance of Christmas
Pooled Editorial	Collaborative editorial on a shared issue	Stop Tuition Fee Increase

English Major – Campus Journalism

How to Write an Editorial

1. Choose one Specific, Timely Topic
 - a. Pick a single issue you want to focus on.
 - b. Make sure it's newsworthy and relevant to your readers.
2. Organize Into Three Parts
 - a. Introduction (Lead Paragraph)
 - i. Start with a newspeg – a short sentence that refers to the news event or issue you're reacting to.
 - ii. Follow with your reaction or stance on the issue.
 - iii. Keep it clear and concise.

Example:

The principal's new dress code policy has caused a stir among students. While discipline is important, the rule needs reconsideration.

- b. Body (Support Paragraphs)
 - i. Provide reasons, facts, or examples that support your opinion.
 - ii. Can be 2–3 short paragraphs.
 - iii. You may use:
 1. Comparisons
 2. Expert quotes or references
 3. Historical context
 4. Logical reasoning

Example:

The policy bans jeans, which many students wear not out of rebellion but for comfort and affordability. Enforcing this may burden families and create unnecessary tension.

- c. Conclusion (Clincher)
 - i. End with a summary of your stand or a call to action.
 - ii. Keep it firm and memorable.

Example:

Discipline should never come at the cost of student expression. A revised policy made in consultation with the students would serve everyone better.

Types of Editorial Column

1. Opinion Column (Signed Editorial Column): Personal viewpoint of the writer. Similar to an editorial but uses “I” and includes personal tone
Example: Walter Lippmann's “Today and Tomorrow”
2. Hodge-Podge Column: A mixed bag of content:
 - a. Poems
 - b. Announcements
 - c. Proverbs
 - d. Quotes
 - e. Jokes
 - f. Random thoughts or observations

English Major – Campus Journalism

- g. Informal and varied in tone
3. Essay Column (Rare Today): Literary, reflective, or philosophical tone. Often leisurely, elegant, and meditative
Example writers: Addison, Steele, Charles Lamb, G.K. Chesterton
Filipino example: Godofredo Rivera
4. Gossip Column: Focuses on people: celebrities, socialites, public figures. It highlights personal lives — often scandalous or sensational
Example: Walter Winchell's "Keyhole" journalism
5. Dopester's Column: Like gossip, but political or institutional in nature. It targets decision-makers: politicians, CEOs, etc. It also offers insider scoops, predictions, and leaks and aims to inform public with behind-the-scenes developments.

CARTOONING

- An editorial cartoon is an illustration on the editorial page that expresses opinion and interpretation.
- Its purpose is to inform, influence, and entertain.

Characteristics of a Good Editorial Cartoon

1. Conveys one clear idea
2. Often about political or social issues
3. Appeals to the reader's humor or emotion
4. Can be funny or serious
5. Aims to persuade or criticize effectively

6. Limited in the use of words and labels
7. Original and unique
8. Uses universal symbols and easily understood even by ordinary reader
9. Does not defame nor expose a person or object to hatred, ridicule, or contempt

WRITING FEATURES

- A feature article is a factual story written to entertain, inform, advise, or instruct. Unlike news reports, it's more creative, flexible, and often timeless.

Characteristics of a Good Feature Article

1. Can be read at leisure
2. Uses novelty leads
3. Based on facts but written creatively
4. Uses vivid language
5. Uses literary devices like dialogue, suspense, climax, narration
6. Shows unity, coherence, and emphasis
7. Written in a friendly, conversational tone

Types of Feature Articles

Type	Description
News Feature	Adds depth to a news story already reported. "The story behind the story."

English Major – Campus Journalism

Interpretative Feature	Explains causes, motivations, and consequences of a news event.
Straight Feature	A general, interesting story without a time element. No news peg needed.
Personality Feature	Gives an in-depth look at a person's life, personality, and quirks.
Interview Feature	Based on an interview with a prominent figure or expert.
Human Interest Feature	Meant to touch emotions – can be sad, funny, or heartwarming.
Backgrounder	Explains the background or context of a current news issue.
Brites	Short (usually <100 words), clever, funny, and ends with a twist or punchline.